Presentation Title: Experiences and Lessons Learned from the Ag and STEM Connect Program: How Educators Can Ignite Students' Interest in FANH

Participants learn about a three-day Ag and STEM Connect professional development program. Through the lenses of former participants, attendees gain knowledge about the experiences and lessons learned from middle and high school educators and school counselors, as well as how the program has impacted them both professionally and personally. Participants learn how this professional development summer program better positions educators and school counselors to ignite interest in their students in the food, agriculture, natural resources and human sciences fields. Suggestions and recommendations for future professional development as well as classroom-based ideas to engage and support students' interest in the FANH fields are discussed.
